

Husky Oil

SAFETY ALERT

Incident Summary:

On January 24, 2013 at 2:30pm, two Husky Operators were checking leases together. Upon arrival at one location, the Operators made it a quarter of the way into location when the truck spun out in a snow drift and was stuck. They called another Husky Operator to come and pull them out.

When the other Operator arrived, they hooked the trucks using a tow strap connected to the ball on one truck (tower) and the clevis hitch on the stuck truck. On the second attempt they started to pull and the ball on the hitch sheared off, went through the back window of the stuck truck and struck the driver in the head. 911 was called and the injured Operator was taken to Lloydminster hospital.
